UNREALITY.

Oh, an imitation dollar very often passes fine,
And they give us imitations in our foodstuffs when we dine!
An imitation beauty wins an imitation sigh;
You meet all kinds except, perhaps, an imitation lie.

There is imitation laughter that conceals a bitter sneer,
And imitation pathos brings an imitation tear,
And certain somber cynics sometimes tell us that they saw
An imitation justice with an imitation law.

Ofttimes when you are gloomy and you look into the stars
And hear the wise ones hinting that there may be men in Mars
You wonder where the planet is, of simple, honest worth,
That furnishes the pattern for this imitation earth.

BILL CROSS AND HIS PET BEAR.

By JOAQUIN MILLER.

When my father settled down at the foot of the Oregon sierras with his little family long, long years ago, it was 40 miles from our place to the nearest civilized settlement.

People were very scarce in those days and bears were very plenty. We also had wolves, wildcats, wild cattle, wild hogs and a good many long tailed and big headed yellow California lions.

The wild cattle, brought there from Spanish Mexico, next to the bear were most to be feared. They had long, sharp horns and keen, sharp hoofs. Nature had gradually helped them out in these weapons of defense. They had grown to be slim and trim of body and were as supple and swift as deer. They were the deadly enemies of all wild beasts, because all wild beasts devoured their young.

When fat and saucy, in warm summer weather, these cattle would hover along the foothills in bands, hiding in the hollows, and would begin to bellow whenever they saw a bear or wolf or even a man or boy, if on foot, crossing the wide valley of grass and blue camas blossoms. Then there would be music! They would start up, with head and tails in the air, and broadening out left and right they would draw a long, bent line, completely shutting off their victim from all approach to the foothills.

If the unfortunate victim were a man or boy on foot, he generally made escape up one of the small ash trees that dotted the valley in groves here and there, and the cattle would then soon give up the chase. But if it were a wolf or any other wild beast that could not get up a tree the case was different. Far away on the other side of the valley, where dense woods lined the banks of the winding Willamette river, the wild, bellowing herd would be answered. Out from the edge of the woods would stream right and left two long, corresponding, surging lines, bellowing and plunging forward now and then, their heads to the ground, their tails always in the air and their eyes aflame, as if they would set fire to the long gray grass. With the precision and discipline of a well ordered army they would close in upon the wild beast, too terrified now to either fight or fly, and, leaping upon him one after another with their long hoofs, he would in a little time be crushed into an unrecognizable mass. Not a bone would be left unbroken. It is a mistake to suppose that they ever use their long, sharp horns in attack. These were used only in defense, the same as elk or deer, falling on the knees and receiving the enemy on their horns, much as the Old Guard received the enemy in the last terrible struggle at Waterloo.

Bill Cross was a "tenderfoot" at the time of which I write, and a sailor at that. Now, the old pilgrims who had dared the plains in those days of '49, when cowards did not venture and the weak died on the way, had not the greatest respect for the courage or endurance of those who had reached Oregon by ship. But here was this man, a sailor by trade, settling down in the interior of Oregon and, strangely enough, pretending to know more about everything in general and bears in particular than either my father or any of his boys.

He had taken up a piece of land down in the pretty Camas valley, where the grass grew long and strong and waved in the wind, mobile and beautiful as the mobile sea.

The good natured and self complacent old sailor liked to watch the waving grass. It reminded him of the sea, I reckon. He would sometimes sit on our little porch as the sun went down and tell us boys strange, wild sea stories. He had traveled far and seen much, as much as any man can see on water, and maybe was not a very big liar, for a sailor, after all. The only thing about him that we did not like outside of his chronic idleness was his exalted opinion of himself and his unconcealed contempt for everybody's opinion but his own.

"Bill," said my father one day, "those black Spanish cattle will get after that red sash and sailor jacket of yours some day when you go down in the valley to your claim, and they won't leave a grease spot. Better go horseback or at least take a gun when you go down next time."

"Pshaw! Squire, I wish I had as many dollars as I ain't afeard of all the black Spanish cattle in Oregon. Why, if they're so blasted dangerous how did your missionaries ever manage to drive them up here from Mexico, anyhow?"

Still, for all that, the very next time that he saw the old sailor setting out at his snail pace for his ranch below, slow and indolent as if on the deck of a ship, my father insisted that he should go on horseback or at least take a gun.

"Pooh, pooh! I wouldn't be bothered with a horse or a gun. Say, I'm goin to bring your boys a pet bear some day."

And so, cocking his little hat down over his right eye and thrusting his big hands into his deep pockets almost to the elbows, he slowly and lazily whistled himself down the gradual slope of the foothills, waist deep in the waving grass and delicious wild flowers, and soon was lost to sight in the great waving sea.

Two things may be here written down. He wouldn't ride a horse, because he couldn't, and for the same reason he wouldn't use a gun. Again, let it be written down also that the reason he was going away that warm autumn afternoon was that there was some work to do. These facts were clear to my kind and indulgent father, but of course we boys never thought of it and laid our little shoulders to the hard work of helping father lift up the long, heavy poles that were to complete the corral around our pioneer log cabin, and we really hoped and half believed that he might bring home a little pet bear.

This stout log corral had become an absolute necessity. It was high and strong and made of poles or small logs stood on end in a trench after the fashion of a primitive one in front of the cabin door. Here it was proposed to put up a gate. We also had talked about portholes in the corners of the corral, but neither gate nor portholes were yet made. In fact, as said before, the serene and indolent man of the sea always slowly walked away down through the grass toward his untracked claim whenever there was anything said about portholes, posts or gates.

Father and we three little boys had only got the last post set and solidly "tamped" in the ground as the sun was going down.

Suddenly we heard a yell, then a yelling, then a bellowing. This yelling was heard in the high grass in the Camas valley below, and the bellowing of cattle came from the woody river banks far beyond.

Then up on the brown hills of the Oregon sierras above us came the wild answer of the wild black cattle of the hills, and a moment later, right and left, the long black lines began to widen out; then down they came, like a whirlwind, toward the black and surging line in the grass below. We were now almost in the center of what would in a little time be a complete circle and cyclone of furious Spanish cattle.

And now here is something curious to relate. Our own cows, poor, weary, immigrant cows of only a year before, tossed their tails in the air, pawed the ground, bellowed and fairly went wild in the splendid excitement and tumult. One touch of nature made the whole cow world kin!

Father clambered up on a "buck horse" and looked out over the stockade, and then he shouted and shook his hat and laughed as I had never heard him laugh before. For there, breathless, coatless, hatless, came William Cross, Esq., two small wolves and a very small black bear! They were all making good time, anywhere, any way to escape the frantic cattle. Father used to say afterward that "it was nip and tuck between the four and hard to say which was ahead." The cattle had made quite a "round up."

They all four straggled in at the narrow little gate at about the same time, the great big, lazy sailor in a hurry for the first time in his life.

But think of the coolness of the man as he turned to us children with his first gasp of breath and said, "Bo—bo—boys, I've bro—bro—brought you a little bear!"

The wolves were the little chicken thieves known as coyotes, quite harmless, as a rule, so far as man is concerned, but the cattle hated them, and they were terrified nearly to death.

The cattle stopped a few rods from the stockade. We let the coyotes go, but we kept the little bear and named him Bill Cross. Yet he was never a bit cross, despite his name.

Use of Nettles.

Nettles are as a rural remedy highly calculated, I should say, to make the patient "onaisy." Whipping with nettles has been used in case of lethargy, numbness and palsy, with what effect I cannot say, but this I do know—handling nettles regardless of their sting produces a numbness which destroys for a time further sensitiveness to their poison. Culpepper enumerates no less than 42 diseases that are cured by an application of nettles in one form or another, among them leprosy, gout, sciatica, itch, wounds and sores of all sorts. He also informs us that the juice is effectual to "settle the palate of the mouth in its place." Has any one experience of the palate shifting elsewhere? I have not heard of it. Curtis says that "in Arran and other islands of Scotland a rennet is made of a strong decoction of nettles. A quart of salt is put to three pints of decoction and boiled. A spoonful will coagulate a large bowl of milk."

Oh, that this too too solid flesh would melt,
Thaw and resolve itself into a dew!

Little did Hamlet think when he gave utterance to this desire that he had only to go to the nearest ditch where grew nettles and periwinkle to bring it about, and yet Gerard, quoting from Dioscorides (first century), says that "nettles boiled with perrywinkles maketh the body soluble and doth it by a kind of cleansing quality." Few who believed it so would care to try the experiment.—Longman's.

When Pins Were New.

A curious fact in the early history of pins is that when they were first sold in "open shop" there was such a great demand for them that a code was passed permitting their sale only on two days in the year—the 1st and 2d of January. Those days the court ladies and the city dames flocked to the depots to purchase them in such numbers that they were accounted festivals.

THE HONEYBEE.

Its Curious Jaws and Its Wonderful Little Tongue.

With the closest scrutiny it becomes evident that the bee does not, like other creatures, house its tongue in its mouth, but neatly folds it back beneath its head. Bumblebees, when disturbed, have a way of threatening with their jaws, while the honeybee has the more direct method of settling intruders with her sting.

The jaws of the bee are very creditable organs and can give quite a formidable nip. Catch a bee in a net and see how viciously it will bite at the meshes, working its jaws sideways instead of up and down.

We call this wonderful implement of the bee a tongue, but in reality it is more than this, for the whole arrangement consists of two slender filaments called maxillæ, the under lip and the actual tongue. If a drop of honey lies near the surface of a flower, the slender, active tongue, darting out from the case formed by the maxillæ, licks it up with the same ease that a dog licks a plate. Should the tube of the flower be elongated the bee has at command another length of tongue, which is shot out from within and shuts up like a telescope when no longer wanted.

To appreciate fully this delicate organ you should watch the bee separate it into its component parts and clean it out. The lengthening process of the proboscis, as the tongue and its allied parts are sometimes called, is accomplished by a series of springs and hinges. In addition to this telescoping power, the tongue is a hairy member, the hairs arranged in rings, the longest ones toward the center. They assist in lifting in the nectar and in pumping it into the mouth. Thence it goes to the honey sack.—Chautauquan.

Gambling.

The writer once spent a Saturday afternoon in the study of a dignitary of the church while the ecclesiastic struggled in vain to frame an argument against gambling to be presented to the congregation on the morrow. He abandoned the attempt. Far be it from a literary journal to assert powers the possession of which the professionally religious are fain to disclaim, yet with submission we even venture to believe that at least one cogent and effective argument lies against all forms of gambling—one, namely, based on the truth that wealth, great or small, is a trust and therefore may not be put in risk.

The moralist may declare that the gambler gets, or at least wants to get, something for nothing. Men will laugh. They know better. The winner gave his chance to lose for his winnings. For his losses the winner got his chance to win. But ask the speculator whether he would gamble with trust funds held by him for orphans and then suggest to him the one great truth that is seizing hold of men's conscience, the most hopeful sign in these perplexed days of social unrest, that men are trustees of all that they call their own. —Current Literature.

Life Insurance.

It is an interesting fact that, whatever the reason may be, life insurance is much more popular in the United States than in any other country. In proportion to their numbers the American people carry twice as much life insurance as the Britishers, five times as much as the Germans and eight times as much as the French.

This is partly explained by the large number of American policies issued to serve other purposes than mere provision for the families of the insured. The scope of what may be called business as distinguished from family insurance is constantly enlarging. A novel and interesting recent development of it is the insurance of the lives of Protestant ministers for large sums which are made payable at their deaths to their churches.—New York World.

HOPELESS CASES.

When the doctor leaves and says the case is hopeless, what remains to be done? Nothing, if the doctor's word is final. Much, if you will listen to the statements of men and women who were once "hopeless cases" given up by doctors, and who were perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Nothing is more sure than that thousands of men and women with diseased lungs, obstinate coughs, hemorrhage, emaciation and night-sweats, have been restored to perfect health by the use of the "Discovery." Will it cure you?

It has cured in ninety-eight cases out of every hundred where it was given a fair and faithful trial. By that record you have only two chances in a hundred of failure and ninety-eight chances of being restored to perfect health. It is worth trying.

Abram Freer, Esq., of Rockbridge, Greene Co., Ill., writes: "My wife had a severe attack of pleurisy and lung trouble; the doctors gave her up to die. She commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she began to improve from the first dose. By the time she had taken eight or ten bottles she was cured, and it was the cause of a large amount being sold here. I think the 'Golden Medical Discovery' is the best medicine in the world for lung trouble."

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser containing over a thousand large pages is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE GOV. GAGE OUTRAGE.

GOVERNOR GAGE has been getting it hot and heavy for his disreputable action in regard to the California Home.

Dr. Osborne, whom the creatures of the Governor have deposed as Superintendent of the institution, has long been appreciated for his efficiency and sterling worth.

If Governor Gage didn't know it before he knows it now. Probably in no other direction could he have raised such a war cloud.

The Press, regardless of political faith, has been roasting him and politicians all over the State have been hurling no comely invectives at him. As for the Governor's associates they are faring no better than he. "That crowd," and "that trash"—these are the appellations most applied to the Gage push now days.

In spite of all the talk, however, we have lost Dr. Osborne and the "political hack" is feathering his nest.

Dr. Osborne, ever the gentleman he is, made the change of administration as pleasant as possible. He showed every possible courtesy to the new superintendent and did his best to keep the wheels of the institution going in the same old way. He had the interest of his children at heart and did nothing whatever to make manifest to them the new order of things. He would make any sacrifice for these poor unfortunates and because of them he facilitated the change rather than retarded it in any way.

Dr. Osborne's greatest desire will always be to see the children as happy and well cared for as they were under his administration.

THE effect of environment on the individual has long been discussed by scientists. They do not overestimate its importance. The tiger of the jungle takes on the striped appearance and characteristics of the landscape about him. The caterpiller grows so much like the bark on which it lives that one can scarcely distinguish the one from the other. In the human world the effect is less marked but nevertheless exists. In the big cities where there is bustle and rush the individual is especially energetic and alert. In the city where there is no particular hurry and no need for the keen competition of the metropolis the individual is more or less languid and dull. In communities where everything is well kept and the slovenly in all things is barred out, we see the people scrupulous about their personal appearance and every belonging bears the stamp care. If the grass is found growing in the streets and there appears to have been no effort to beautify the surroundings you naturally conclude that such community is slovenly. The people are a reflection of their immediate surroundings, and for this reason, if we would be judged rightly, let us improve. Let the people of Sonoma Valley do all within their power to further the efforts of the Board of Trade and carry out the suggestions made in the excellent article contributed to these columns in last week's issue by its President.

ARRANGEMENTS are now completed for receiving the sixteen thousand visitors who will come to San Jose on the occasion of the State's birthday. The Halls and Accommodations Committee has provided thirty halls as headquarters for the various parlors of Native Sons, who will entertain during their visit to San Jose. To date a sufficient number of rooms in private residences have been placed at the disposal of the Celebration Committee to warrant that all who come to San Jose will be comfortably housed. The Rooms Committee has organized a messenger service so that there will not be the slightest inconvenience in obtaining and locating rooms.

CARRIE NATION, the smasher, is coming our way. Now is the time to swear off. Don't wait till the first of the year. The saloon men will do well to have an extra supply of siphons on hand.

THE OBSERVER.

TWO PICTURES.

The bachelor sits in his den blowing rings of smoke about his head. Thoughts crowd in upon him in his solitude. His pipe, his room, himself—these are all he has to care for after business hours. After all perhaps it's best. He is free to come and go. If he wants to lose a couple of twenties at the club there is no one to chide. He can stay out all night and it's all right. He refils his pipe and the smoke again circles about him.

Is it all right? He is going the pace. There is no restraining hand. Not a soul in all this world to care if he goes to the devil or not.

One might have cared if he had acted rightly. Her vision comes before him. But it is only his imagination—a pipe dream and yet he speaks:

I see you now, ah creature fair
Lovelier far than you ever were.
I speak to you in loving phrase,
Yet you but stand and on me gaze
As if I were but stone,
Nor moved my lips to thee.
And now I see you fade away,
You fainter fainter grow,
Then vanish with the day.

* * * * * * *

She's gone. Yes, once again
I let her pass.

The bachelor's reverie is over. He gets up from his Turkish chair, puts away his pipe and life again is real.

The Benedict, his next door neighbor, envies him. He thinks he is abused. He does not appreciate the interest a loving wife has in him. He thinks she is a scold. He has to watch the hands of the clock and come home three hours earlier than his bachelor friend. He has to drink sarsaparillas. Pshaw! if he weren't married.

But that very night he is taken with a malignant fever. The wife who was a scold is now the ministering angel. Then it is he realizes her true worth. He is glad he is a Benedict, and when the bachelor next door hears of the wife's devotion he resolves to forsake his den forever.

Swiftwater Bill, the Klondike lady-killer, is in jail. Swiftie was rushing another wife. This time his fourteen-year-old niece. The authorities think they have a double case against him. He does not seem to have been divorced from his second wife.

A man in the East has invented a contrivance to keep roosters from crowing in the early morning. They probably gave him away when he came home late and tried to make out it was "quarter of twelve." Can you blame him for getting even?

Santa Rosa has passed an anti-expectoration law. What will the politicians of that town do in campaign times? Where will they "cough up?

Women don't object to men adopting the shirt waist, but when horses begin to wear bonnets it is time to call a halt. Think of the rivalry on an Easter morning.

THE SWISS CELEBRATION

Exercises to be Held on the High School Grounds.

The Swiss celebration committee has secured the High School grounds on Broadway for their celebration on September 22d. The grounds will be handsomely decorated with flags and evergreens. Hon. E. B. Martinelli of San Rafael and Dr. J. H. Sartori of San Francisco have been selected as orators, and as both are graceful and fluent speakers a literary as well as musical treat is in store for those who attend the celebration.

The festivities will be inaugurated with a grand parade which will start from the depot upon the arrival of the morning train of the California Northwestern. The line of parade will be around the Plaza and down Broadway to the picnic grounds.

In the parade will be represented among other things the twenty-two Cantons of Switzerland, Wm. Tell and son, Grudli and Uncle Sam. The whole will be headed by a fine brass band of fifteen pieces.

Sequel to the Gil P. Hall Suit.

At a meeting of the County Board of Supervisors last Tuesday a compromise was made in the matter of the cost bill filed by Gil P. Hall of Petaluma, ex County Recorder, in connection with the suits instituted by the county several years ago to recover an alleged shortage in Hall's accounts. The ex Recorder vanquished the county in the courts and then filed a cost claim against it in the sum of $1,324.45. As Hall appeared to have a dead cinch on the county the Supervisors concluded to compromise the matter by offering him $850 in full settlement, and his attorneys grabbed for the bait like a trout in fly time. The Supervisors then passed a resolution authorizing the District Attorney to dismiss the suit. [illegible] has ended a series of suits that have been both vexatious and costly to the county.

PRESIDENT McKINLEY ASSASSINATED.

Word was received here yesterday (Friday) afternoon, as we were about to go to press, that President McKinley had been assassinated by a crank at Buffalo, N. Y., where was attending the Exposition. He was shot twice and mortally wounded.

Every American will feel the great loss the country must suffer by the death of this good and great man. Sympathy and sorrow are everywhere. Indignation at the cowardly wretch who did the shooting is felt throughout the land.

Never since the assassination of Lincoln and Garfield has so dire a calamity befallen the country.

How To Gain Flesh

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of SCOTT'S EMULSION. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food, which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking

A Model.

Mr. Jones came home at an unseemly hour the other night and was surprised to see Mrs. Jones sitting up for him below stairs, with no other light than that of the gas lamp, which faced the door, to keep her company.

"M-M-Marie," he said huskily, "y-you shouldn't sit up s'late when I'm out on business."

As Mrs. Jones did not answer him, he continued in an alarmed voice:

"Shorry, m'dear, but it's last time—tell you I'm sorry—won't shpeak to me?"

At this moment Mrs. Jones called from above stairs:

"Mr. Jones, who are you talking to at this hour of the night?"

"Thash what I'd like to know m-m-myself," stammered Jones.

Mrs. Jones hastened down stairs, lamp in hand. When she saw the situation, she laughed in spite of being very angry.

"It's the model," she said—"the model I bought today to fit my dresses on."

"Yes, thash so," said Jones tipsily. "Model woman—didn't talk back—make some fellow good wife."—London Tit-Bits.

The Odd Shillings.

There is very little difference between a pound and a guinea; only a shilling, and yet the keen business man insists that the shilling shall be considered. After Thackeray's series of lectures on the four Georges had been delivered in London, Willert Beale says that he called upon the novelist in Onslow square with a check for £250.

"What's this, W. B.?" cried Thackeray, reading the check. "Pounds? Our agreement says guineas, and guineas it must be."

"You are aware that the lectures so far have involved very heavy losses," said Beale apologetically.

"That's not my affair," said Thackeray. "I don't know what occult means you have to protect yourself from loss. Guineas, W. R.! Guineas it must be, and nothing else. I must have the shillings."

And the shillings were sent him immediately.

Painting Black Eyes.

"The painting of blackened eyes, of which you hear little nowadays," said a man of experience, "is so well established a business now that it does not even need advertising. A sign which I just passed aroused memories of earlier days within me. It was merely the name of a man who does this kind of painting, with the brief announcement, 'Black Eyes Painted.'

"Some years ago such a simple statement was not enough to enable one in that business to live. The artist whose calling this sign declared is the same man who some years back used to have a place on the avenue farther west, and in front of that old office he used to have an expansive and gorgeous sign which told his accomplishments in the phraseology which the only Tody Hamilton after perfected in describing the charms of the best that Barnum offered."—New York Sun.

Tests of Culture.

The chemist Liebig proposed to measure the standard of civilization by the consumption of soap, a creation which would put the inhabitants of north Holland at the head of all civilized nations. As a more reliable test Edmund About suggested the sale of steel pens, the socialist Bebel the frequency of reform meetings, Dr. Bernard the use of undergarments, a luxury unknown to the semicivilized tribes of Asia and South America; Professor Ebers the sale of postage stamps. The mileage of railroads per hundred square miles of territory might do in comparing countries of equal density of population.—Exchange.

Telegraphing With Cannons.

When the first vessel completed the passage of the then new Erie canal in 1825, there being no such thing as a telegraph in those days, the news was communicated to New York and to Buffalo by cannons placed within hearing of each other all the way along from Albany to each of the other cities. The signal was passed along in this way from Albany to New York city and back again to Albany in 58 minutes. The experiment was a costly one, but was a success in every particular.

Her Sentiments.

They were looking over the paper together. "Oh, my, how funny!" said she.

"What is it?' he asked.

"Why, here's an advertisement that says, 'No reasonable offer refused.'"

"What is there odd about that?"

"Nothing, nothing," she replied, trying to blush; "only those are my sentiments."

Another wedding shortly.

Holland Customs.

Holland has some peculiar customs. In many towns bulletins are affixed to the doors of houses in which persons are sick in order that their friends may be apprised of the state of their health without knocking or ringing, and in Haarlem the birth of a child is announced by means of a small placard adorned with red silk and lace.

A Reasonable Conductor.

Pikey—And just because you had lost your nickel, the conductor made you get off the car and walk all the way home?

Bilkey—Oh, no. He only put me off. I could have sat by the roadside all night if I had wanted to.—Baltimore World.

"Something New Under the Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid, gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes, causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the trea ment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently curres CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharge, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic, got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power, of Emporia, Kan. "My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured." A Minister's Mistake.

A city minister was recently handed a notice to be read from his pulpit. Accompanying it was a clipping from a newspaper bearing upon the matter. The clergyman started to read the extract and found that it began: "Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure." This was hardly what he expected and, after a moment's hesitation, he turned it over, and found on the other side the matter intended for the reading.
